Since 2004, Embracing Our Differences has used the power of art and prose to promote "Enriching Lives Through Diversity and Inclusion." One way it achieves this is through its annual, juried international outdoor art exhibition comprising 50 billboard-sized works of art, each accompanied by an inspirational quotation. This year's response to the call for artwork and inspirational quotations broke last year's record, with 17,413 entries pouring in from 123 countries and 47 states. Students from 423 schools around the world submitted artwork or quotations to the juried exhibit. The Best-in-Show Adult artwork award went to Samantha Miller from Sarasota. Mia Gonzalez, a 9th grade student from Parrish Community High School in Bradenton, won the Best-in-Show Student award for her art. Alicia Chalmers of Bradenton, won Best-in-Show for her inspirational quotation. The winning quotations and art will be showcased in the 19th annual exhibit, January 15 through April 10, in Sarasota's Bayfront Park, Five Bayfront Drive, Sarasota. For more information about this exhibit or Embracing Our Differences, call 941-404-5710 or visit www.embracingourdifferences.org. Photo: Samantha Miller's "Cultivation" won Adult Bestin-Show.

The program for Hermitage Sunsets @ Selby Gardens on Friday, January 21 will be "The Work" at 5:30pm. Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright and composer Michael R. Jackson returns to the Hermitage following his popular beachfront program last season. Since his critically acclaimed musical, "A Strange Loop," premiered at Playwrights Horizons, the theatermaker has continued the work with projects such as "White Girl in Danger" and "Accounts Payable," a commission from Lincoln Center. Join Jackson as part of the "Hermitage Sunsets @ Selby Gardens" series and hear from the writer-composer whose work has been described by The New York Times as being driven by "curiosity, positivity, and humor - but also an irrepressible appetite for the possible." This event is presented in partnership with Marie Selby Botanical Gardens. Registration is required at HermitageArtistRetreat.org ($5/person registration fee). Marie Selby Botanical Gardens (Downtown Sarasota), 1534 Mound Street, Sarasota.

Andy Sandberg, Artistic Director and CEO of the Hermitage Artist Retreat, announced today that playwright and director Radha Blank has been selected as the inaugural recipient of the Hermitage Major Theater Award. This national jury-selected prize, newly established by the Hermitage earlier this year with generous support from the Kutya Major Foundation, offers one of the largest non-profit theater commissions in the country. Blank will receive a cash prize of $35,000 as well as a residency at the Hermitage and a developmental workshop in New York. Blank's critically acclaimed debut feature film, "The Forty-Year-Old Version" (Netflix), was awarded the 2020 Sundance Film Festival's Vanguard Award and the U.S. Dramatic Directing Award. Blank's play "Seed" received a Helen Merrill Award, and she has written for the television series "Empire" (Fox) and Spike Lee's "She's Gotta Have It" (Netflix). Blank is also known to many audiences as RadhaMUSprime, performing her unique brand of hiphop comedy performance around the world. "I am thrilled to receive this kind of support from the theater-making community and honored to be the first recipient of this awesome award, " said Radha Blank on receiving the Hermitage Major Theater Award. "This recognition is very affirming. This commission answers the question: how can I continue to do my work and not jump into a system that is constantly asking me to conform and change who I am? Having a destination and an actual place and community to create is a gift. I don't take it lightly. I really appreciate this."

Hermitage News

The Hermitage Artist Retreat has announced a full slate of early 2022 programs featuring new and returning Hermitage Fellows, from Pulitzer Prizewinning playwright Paula Vogel and Avery Fisher Prizewinning flutist Claire Chase to Beyonce collaborator and soloing band member Lady Jess and interdisciplinary artist Ni'Ja Whitson. The program lineup – presented at outdoor venues throughout Sarasota County including the Hermitage Beach and Selby Gardens Downtown – also includes "Say Their Names," a partnership with Manasota ASALH (Association for the Study of African American Life & History) to present selections from composer-saxophonist Matthew

"We are thrilled to launch 2022 with an exciting slate of programming that introduces our Gulf Coast community to some of the most extraordinary talents and performers working today," said Hermitage Artistic Director and CEO Andy Sandberg. "We are grateful to continue our collaboration with Selby Gardens to present a new program with Lady Jess, a brilliant violinist who has frequently shared the stage with Beyoncé, as well as returning Hermitage Fellow Michael R. Jackson, who won the Pulitzer Prize last year for his musical A Strange Loop. We're also looking forward to new partnerships with Manasota ASALH (featuring Matthew Evan Taylor) and the Conservation Foundation of the Gulf Coast (featuring Claire Chase and Ni'Ja Whitson), among other leading arts and cultural institutions in our region. Where else can audiences experience – in the span of a few weeks - works in progress from so many of the world's greatest artists, alongside theater legends like Paula Vogel and Gavin Creel?!" In addition, All of these outdoor programs are free and open to the public with a $5/person registration fee. Due to capacity limitations and social distancing, registration is required at HermitageArtistRetreat.org. All of the Hermitage's scheduled programming through the end of 2021 and into early 2022 will continue outdoors unless otherwise indicated, all with socially distanced seating.

December is the biggest movie month of the year. And while I hope you are safely returning to the cinema, if you aren't quite ready, many of the big movies can be found on a streaming service.

Before I get started on the big movies, let me say how much I loved A Clüsterfünke Christmas, Comedy Central's loving parody of Hallmark Channel holiday movies. It wastes no time in letting you know exactly what you're in for. Our heroine Holly (Vella Lavell) is a New York City, workobsessed, single, with a harried assistant, self-declared "bubbly best friend" whose sole purpose is to provide backstory and a rich and inattentive boyfriend. To save her job, Holly has to go to Yuletown, Maine to buy the Clüsterfünke Inn for her real estate company. Boo!

Of course she meets a hunky hometown guy (Cheyenne Jackson) and they just DON'T get along, and of course she quickly acquires a "platonic confidante." Meanwhile, she tries to convince the Clusterfünke sisters (Rachel Dratch and Ana Gasteyer) to sell their Inn, while attending every Noel-themed festival you can imagine. There's the obligatory montage, product placement, nondescript music, you get it. I'd recommend pouring a glass of holiday cheer and sitting down to A Clüsterfünke Christmas.

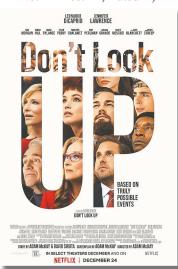

Being the Ricardos (Dec. 10, Amazon, Dec. 21, Rated R) AMAZON ORIGINAL MOVIE 11 KIDMAN

DECEMBER'S BIG MOVIES

I'm guessing that when you thought, "Who should play Lucille Ball on the big screen?" you didn't think, "A super tall, thin Aussie with a bit too much Botox would be perfect." Have you seen the trailer? I'm kind of loving Nicole Kidman as Lucy and of course, Javier Badem as Desi. Being the Ricardos is written and directed by master wordsmith Aaron Sorkin and looks at one tumultuous week in the lives of the most famous couple in America.

Don't Look Up (Dec. 10 on Netflix Dec. 24, Rated R)

Meryl Streep as the president is enough for me to check out this Adam McCay film about a comet on a path to destroy the world. The big-name cast includes Leo DiCaprio, Jennifer Lawrence, Tyler Perry, Cate Blanchett, Jonah Hill and more. I loved McCay's other films, from The Big Short to Anchorman.

The Matrix Resurrections (Dec. 22, Theaters and HBO Max, R)

I saw the original Matrix on TV a few years after it came out in 1999. I thought it was OK. Keanu Reeves is back and he still looks great and he'll probably kill a few less people than in the John Wick movies. You might want to catch this one on the big screen.

West Side Story (Theaters Now, Rated PG-13)

Every year Emma and I choose a Christmas movie, and this year, we'll be at Steven Spielberg's vision of the beloved musical that I frankly didn't love so much. From the trailer, this film screams Big Screen! The dance numbers look amazing and the casting is more authentic than the original movie. If anyone can get this right, Spielberg can. We'll be there on Christmas.

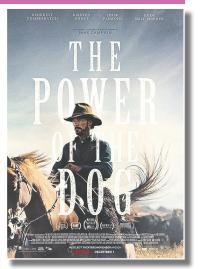

A Journal for Jordan (Dec. 25, Rated PG-13) MICHAEL B. JORDAN CHANTÉ ADAMS

I am 99% sure that this movie about a soldier (Michael B. Jordan) who keeps a journal for his infant son while at war in Iraq, is going to make me cry. I'm just not sure how early or how often. Denzel Washington directs. I'll wait to watch this one on the small screen, because, you know, the crying thing.

The Power of the Dog (Netflix now, Rated R) This film is getting a lot of awards buzz, especially for director Jane Campion and star Benedict Cumberbatch, who plays a grizzled rancher who does not take too kindly to his brother (Jesse Plemons) bringing home a wife (Kirsten Dunst) and her awkward teenage son. The performances are excellent, ves. even Kirsten Dunst who I have been less than kind to in earlier Amandas. The film is a tad leisurely, but that's Campion's style.

Merry Christmas & Happy New Year Englewood

By Todd Tracy

This year I would love to write about Santa's falling poll numbers, the North Pole's vaccination rates, elf gender fluidity, (I always wondered about those green tights), toy factory supply chain issues, and the alarming rate of "too fat to fly" obese reindeer, but I'm duty bound to end the year on another topic. Bummer.

Here goes. Did you know that The Old Englewood Village Association (OEVA), is a community-based organization, established in 1985, that remains committed to building a stronger town by working with our fellow non-profits, local leaders, organizations, associations, and residents? Don't worry if you didn't, very few locals even know. OEVA supports a diverse mix of interests ranging from community revitalization, management, beautification, arts, promotions, social, cultural, to recreational services. Their goal, with your help, is to make Englewood an even better place to live? To learn more you should visit the OEVA web site at www. OldEnglewood.com and browse the home page to catch up and learn. There you will find a main menu that, with your indulgence, I would like to review with you. Blogs: Staying locally connected and informed is even easier with our new Blog. It has automated links and feeds that are impressive that continue to grow in both content and categories. We can even absorb other organizations' newsletters automatically if they want! News: An overview of all posts in all categories like the town's construction progress, a list of upcoming events, downtown maps, parking spaces, and much more. OEVA Column: Click on this tab to read or share our locally themed editorials published in The Englewood Review.

Board Meeting Minutes: Both the minutes and the agendas are constantly updated and available to everyone.

Join Us: A call for volunteers and members of all types. Our Artists: if you are interested in Englewood's artists or member businesses, click on the tab. Artists and businesses can create personalized pages with custom galleries and profiles. Artist Opportunities: offers locals a quick and easy way to reach or request art or business services.

Upcoming Events: A linked interactive calendar service that continues to grow.

Classes in the Arts: If you have a talent, teach a class or offer a service you would like to share with the public.

Our Businesses: A growing directory of local businesses and services.

Englewood History: A fun collection of Englewood's history.

About Us: All you ever wanted to know about OEVA and then some.

Request an Artist: Where you can contact community artists. Contact Us: Ask a question, or just leave a comment.

Now the interesting part for us locals, OEVA's 2022 goals. OEVA remains committed in our quest to unite the town's nonprofits. Those relationships will bridge our collective strengths and help us all save human and financial resources. The reason behind this idea is that when the Community Redevelopment Area (CRA) Advisory Board, retires in 2029, we need to be ready, united, even excited about promoting and managing our downtown.

In 2022 OEVA will continue to build a world class website with the interactive and automated potential to serve our members and our community well into the future. Surveys: this is exciting. With the help of our CRA, OEVA continues to grow a database of involved residents that through creative e-mail surveys can share their thoughts and governance ideas on timely community topics. The statistical and interactive possibilities are endless and exciting.

Other lingering community sourced ideas include the Art

Alley concept that is already developing thanks to some creative businesses. John Munn's pop-up music concept "PUMA" could be expanded by offering pop-up artists services as well. OEVA is soon to actively begin building a "request an artist or musician" page.

Still in the works is the Englewood Arts District committee that continues to support the Residential Commercial Transition Overlay District, RCTOD. This area promises to become a very hip walking arts district in the future. Finally, OEVA will continue to support the Halloween Safewalk, the Christmas Walk and sponsor or support what we can in the new year.

To do this and more, we'll need your help. Please visit www.OldEnglewood.com, click on either the "Join Us" or Volunteer tab as we are developing our volunteer process flow now, and help us make 2022 a year to remember.

Thanks for hanging in there. Next year, I promise to follow up on the obese reindeer rumors, and dive into why Rudolf's nose is always red this time of year. Until then, Happy New Year everyone!

Page 22 ..... The Englewood REVIEW ...... December 24, 2021 "They Have Treated Me Like a Brother"

By Chris Cameron

Referring to this country's veterans, President Barack Obama once stated, "It's about how we treat our veterans every single day of the year. It's about making sure they have the care they need and the benefits that they've earned when they come home. It's about serving all of you as well as you've served the United States of America". Over the past year, VFW Post #10178 and three businesses in Englewood have exemplified this statement for a local veteran. Lemuel Turner, a WWII veteran, was facing home repair costs like every homeowner encounters at some point. A friend of his reached out to the VFW Post in February after learning that Mr. Turner's water heater had stopped working and he had been without hot water for three weeks. The VFW has a relief fund set up for assisting veterans and their families in need. Past Post Commander Danny Fuson, the current Relief Fund chair, contacted Gem Statewide Plumbing to replace the water heater. They not only set up a new water heater for Mr. Turner, but owner Louis Gemma did not charge this veteran for the water heater and installation.

During his interactions with Mr. Turner, Danny learned that his 100th birthday was in March and that he was a Harley-Davidson man. To celebrate this occasion, Michael Douglass Plumbing employee Frankie Renda and owners Lane Curtis and Jim Curtis meet Lemuel Turner after connecting him to city water and sewer at no charge.

Danny organized a surprise birthday party drive-by with the Sarasota County Sheriff's Office and three of its Harley Davidson motorcycle units, Englewood Fire Department, VFW members and VFW district commander Bob Muhlhauser attending. Mr. Turner received patches from the deputy motorcyclists, a certificate from the National VFW Commander, a WWII certificate, and Post #10178 post certificate.

Fast forward to October when Mr. Turner once again began to have plumbing issues: the house toilets were backing up and the cause was determined to be tree roots infiltrating his leach field. The funds needed to hook up to Englewood water and sewage were beyond his financial reach and once again Post #10178 stepped up to assist this veteran through their Relief Fund. Michael Douglass Plumbing ran the necessary lines for the hook-up. The business' owners, Jane and Jim Curtis, upon learning that the customer was a 100-year-old veteran, said, "no charge" as a way of thanking him for his military service. Amberjack Sanitation was hired to crush and remove the septic tank, and since the owner Brian Halstead and his son Jack are veterans, they decided to absorb the cost for a fellow veteran.

Danny Fuson says the VFW Post serves both veterans and the Englewood community. They interact with local organizations such as Lemon Bay Sunrise Rotary, Girl Scout Troop 419, Englewood Animal Rescue Sanctuary (E.A.R.S.), Englewood schools through the VFW's Voice for Democracy and Patriots Pen contests, Lemon Bay Junior Navy ROTC program and Englewood Elementary School. You will find the VFW participating in special occasions at Lemon Bay Cemetery, Memorial Day, Veterans Day, and events held at the Englewood Veterans Memorial and Freedom Pavilion. He also states that area businesses and organizations step up when needed to help take care of veterans and their families in need, such as Mr. Turner.

Lemuel Turner was born and raised as a farm boy in Huntsville, Alabama. He answered his country's call to serve in the U.S. Army during WWII and was stationed in England. Upon returning home, he worked for Redstone Arsenal. In 1958 he relocated to Englewood and locally his jobs include working as a lifeguard at

Warm Mineral Springs and at a sporting goods store in Venice. Regarding how the Englewood community has honored him, Mr. Turner says he doesn't have the words in his vocabulary to express his gratitude and appreciation for the VFW and for the businesses that have supported him, "They have treated me like a brother!"

Initiated by Englewood VFW Post 10178, Lemuel Turner enjoyed a drive by 100th birthday party.

HOME & GARDEN Tips before deciding to do a DIY

Home improvement projects can range from relatively inexpensive undertakings to complex endeavors that cost homeowners thousands of dollars. In an effort to make expensive projects more affordable, homeowners may look for ways to pitch in, and do-it-yourself demolition is a common way to cut costs.

Due to geographical fluctuations in price as well as the scale of a project, it's hard to pinpoint just how much homeowners can save by doing demolition work themselves. HomeAdvisor estimates that the average small interior demolition project costs just over $3,000, though more significant demolition projects can cost considerably more than that.

Given the cost, it's no surprise that so many homeowners volunteer to do demolition on their own. Though it's possible to do so safely, homeowners can take steps to determine if it's in their best interest to take on a DIY demolition or leave it to the professionals.

Conduct a cost analysis

Demolition projects seem simple, but they often require the use of equipment most homeowners don't have on hand. Rentals can be considered in such instances, but the cost of renting equipment can reduce the amount of money homeowners are saving by going it alone. For example, homeowners may be able to pull up vinyl or tile flooring on their own, but not all floors are installed the same. Some floors may have been glued more effectively than others, making it hard and/or time-consuming to pull them up by hand. A walkbehind floor scraper can make it easier to remove such floors, but that equipment must be rented. A cost analysis comparing the contractors' demolition cost estimate and the cost of DIY, complete with equipment rental projections, can give a more accurate picture of how much money homeowners will save by going it alone. If the savings of DIY are negligible, homeowners should probably let the contractor handle the demo.

Speak with your contractor Prior to saying they'll do the demo work on their own, homeowners should speak with their contractors to get an accurate idea of what the project will entail. Demolition projects may seem simple enough, but contractors can illustrate the correct way to do things so as to minimize potentially costly damage. Some contractors may offer to help homeowners start the demo project and then leave them to their own devices once they get a knack for what to do. Once homeowners see what it will take, they can then decide if DIY is best for them.

done alone. The risk for accident and injury is simply too great for homeowners to go it alone. Homeowners who can't enlist some volunteers to pitch in should leave the job to the professionals.

DIY demolition can save homeowners a lot of money. But such projects are not necessarily as simple as they seem. Homeowners should take steps to see exactly what they're getting into before they volunteer to take on demo duty.

Enlist help No DIY demo should ever be

Protecting What's Valuable

www.keyagency.net

LIFE . HOME . CAR . BUSINESS Property Insurance is not available in the state of Florida from Auto-Owners Insurance

WHAT TO PLANT

Annuals/Bedding Plants: Plants that can be added to the garden during the coolest months include begonia, browallia, lobelia, dianthus, dusty miller, and nicotiana.

Bulbs: Winter is a great time to plant bulbs that will bloom in the spring. Some examples include Clivia lily, crinum, and agapanthus.

Herbs: Many herbs will thrive now that temperatures are cooler, including tarragon, thyme, dill, fennel, and any of the mints.

Vegetables: Many vegetables can be planted this time of year. This the last month to plant Irish potatoes, beets, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, collards, kale, mustard, and turnips.

WHAT TO DO

It is a good time to plant woody shrubs. Water frequently to get new plantings off to a good start.

Irrigation: Water plants if temperatures remain higher than Crepe myrtle normal and rainfall is scarce.

Shrubs and trees: Prune nonspring flowering shrubs and trees this month to improve form.

Arbor Day: Celebrate Florida Arbor Day (the 3rd Friday of January) by planting a tree in your yard or community.

Crape myrtle: Remove seed pods, crossing branches, and small twiggy growth to improve the appearance and form of the plant, if desired. Hard pruning is not required.

Cold protection: Bring sensitive plants like orchids inside if a frost or freeze is predicted. Thoroughly water and cover sensitive plants in the landscape 12–24 hours before a freeze.

Pests: Apply horticultural oil to citrus, shrubs, and deciduous fruit trees while plants are dormant to control scale. Apply copper spray to mangos after bloom.

presentation, Eva will lead a guided walk on January 13 to visit the restored habitats.

LBC Volunteer Opportunities On Tuesday, January 11 and Tuesday, February 8, beginning at 9am, Lucia Schatteleyn of Lemon Bay Conservancy will lead a walk and explain volunteer opportunities at Lemon Creek Wildflower Preserve. Come out and learn how you can help maintain and improve the Preserve located at 3120 Gasparilla Pines Blvd. Session dates and times are dependent on reservations. Reserve by calling

Lucia at 941•662•7908.

Improving the Earth One Garden at a Time

If each of us worked on a garden/yard to enhance its usefulness to birds and other wildlife, there would be a significant improvement in worldwide habitat. On Friday, January 14 from 9 to 11am, visit areas of Lemon Creek Wildflower Preserve with Dr. Bill Dunson to see examples of a variety of plants and gardening techniques.

Pole Walking

Join Lucia Schatteleyn for an exercise walk using poles (1 or 2) for stability. The technique will be explained and demonstrated before the fun begins. The dates are Saturdays: January 15, February 5 and February 19. Start time is 9am at Lemon Creek Wildflower Preserve parking lot. Note these walks will move at a moderate pace. For more information, contact Lucia at 941-662-7908.

Juvenile Tarpon Research Volunteers Needed

On the third Saturday of each month through April, Lemon Bay Conservancy will be doing its juvenile tarpon net pulls in Lemon Creek, and they can always use help! Volunteers assist in pulling in the net and can observe the research activities. The planned dates are Saturdays: January 15, February 19, March 19, and April 16. Start time is 7:45am. Advance registration required. If you would like to assist, please contact Jim Cooper at 941•979•6258 for full details.

Central Preserve Guided Walk Take a guided walk with Charlie Woodruff through the central sections of Lemon Creek Wildflower Preserve on Monday, January 17, 9 to 11am. Learn about the plants and animals that you see along the way.

Focus on Lemon Bay Water Quality

Lemon Bay Conservancy will hold its annual general meeting on Monday, January 17 starting at 5:30pm at the Cape Haze Community Center, 155 Spaniards Rd., Placida. Following a short business session, the program will feature a presentation and discussion led by Ms. Judy Ott, estuary scientist and educator, and Dr. William "Coty" Keller, local ecologist, on "Lemon Bay - It's Complicated: Ideas for Restoring & Safeguarding Our Special Estuary". The meeting is open to the public. For more information, visit lemonbayconservancy.org.

Successional Changes

Join Dr. Bill Dunson on Sunday, January 23 as he discusses expected transitions over time in plant communities on the east side of Lemon Creek Wildflower Preserve. The walk is 9 to 11am.

Preserve West Side Guided Walk

Mike Weisensee will lead an informative walk to visit the estuarine habitats on the west side of Lemon Creek Wildflower Preserve on Monday, January 31 from 9 to 11am.

Charlotte Harbor Environmental Center (CHEC) Nature Walks On these casual walks with

CHEC volunteers, you will search and learn about plants, animals, fungi, and more that live in Charlotte County preserves. Prepare for each walk with plenty of water, insect repellent, sunscreen, and clothing that will protect you from insects and plants. Advance registration is required. The health and safety policies for CHEC programs are subject to change. A healthy bay is everybody's business! Sarasota Bay Watch announces open registration for the 12th Annual Scallopalooza Fundraising Event. The "clamtastic" event is set for 6pm, Saturday, February 12 at the Hyatt Regency Sarasota. "Scallopalooza, It's Clamtastic!" will provide a happy hour, dinner, light presentation, a very popular silent auction, and entertainment while raising funds for local shellfish restoration across the Bay in Sarasota and Manatee counties. Early Bird tickets are available until Friday, December 31. Single tickets are $100. For more information and to register, please visit sarasotabaywatch.org/scallopalooza2022. Your host is Sarasota Bay Watch, an actionbased, grassroots, non-profit organization dedicated to restoring coastal ecosystems through citizen participation. In 2021 alone over 825,000 clams were released! Clams naturally filter excess nutrients that contribute to red tide and poor clarity affecting seagrass growth, a necessary food source for local marine mammals. Membership is free; visit sarasotabaywatch.org to get involved with its on-going effort to protect and restore the local natural resource. By Dean M. Laux

"My life has been about words," says Mary Lundeberg in a vast understatement of what she has accomplished in two careers over the last half-century. Her life has been about words, yes, but also about pictures, teaching and outspoken advocacy for better education and a more ecofriendly society.

Mary grew up in Chicago, the middle child and only daughter of parents in the medical field, and she went to the local city schools before moving on to college at the University of Illinois in Urbana. She didn't particularly like what she saw in the city schools, and she decided that a career in education would be the best starting point for doing something about it. After earning a B.A. degree in English at Illinois, she went on to earn an M.S. in K-12 reading at the University of Wisconsin and a Ph.D.in educational psychology at the University of Minnesota. As Dr. Lundeberg she held increasingly impressive positions as a full professor at the University of Wisconsin and Professor and Chair of the Education Department at Michigan State, teaching teachers to teach-in particular, using case-based methods involving students in interactive learning experiences. Her students learned by doing, whether at the grade school or collegiate level.

During her 23 years as a professor, she co-authored over

She puts people in touch with nature

88 articles and chapters, was Wisconsin's Teacher Educator of the Year in 1994, was named Outstanding Faculty Member of the College of Education on the Wisconsin-River Falls campus in 1999 and served for three years as associate editor of the Journal of Educational Psychology from 1999 to 2002. The awards were earned and appreciated, but she says, "what was really special was when my former students remembered me for what I gave to them." She gave them a love of learning and searched for the best methods to help them learn more.

In 2002 Mary lost her husband of 17 years. "He was wonderful, and I never expected to marry again. I never thought I would find another mate so special," she says. But she did. In 2005 she married Bill Karnes, whom she describes simply as "fabulous" and "phenomenal"pretty nice labels for any marital partner. And Bill changed Mary's life in another way: In 2009, for a valentine present, he gave her a Canon DSLR camera, and later a 600 mm lens. In case you're not into cameras and photography, that is a mighty pricey camera intended for professional use only. "I think he actually bought it for himself, and he lets me use it whenever I want," she jokes. But let it be clear: It's her camera and she uses it a lot–"probably 100 or so shots a day, and sometimes up to 500 in a day." You won't find pictures of her latest meal among those shots, either. She has become an awardwinning professional wildlife photographer. Check out her website (www.marylundeberg. com) for proof.

"I hadn't done much picture taking before getting that camera," she avers. "But the camera sparked my interest in photography, particularly photos of nature." On her website she says, "My goal as a photographer is to create appreciation for the beauty and fragility of this planet, especially water ecosystems, such as the estuaries in Florida, the rivers in Wisconsin and Colorado and the glaciers in Antarctica. Photographing wildlife requires stillness. This challenges me to slow down as I listen to nature speaking to me. I take care not to disturb wildlife, preferring to capture critters' behaviors in their natural habitat." In particular, she says, "I like to focus on the nurturing behavior of animals"-a female elephant tending to her babies, a leopard teaching her young to hunt, or eagle parents watching their nest, for example. And she's traveled the world to do just that.

One trip took her to Antarctica, the Falkland Islands and South Georgia, where she photographed colonies of King penguins and Gentoos, watched elephant seals tend their young and Adele penguins ride an ice floe. She has filmed polar bears in arctic Norway and Cape Buffalo in Kenya. On safari in Africa she took photos of a lion pride, elephants feeding their babies, leopards on a hunt and giraffes fighting. It was nature red in tooth and claw, as Alfred, Lord Tennyson put it. "When I first saw them bobbing at each other with their long necks, I thought it was a mating dance," she says. "But then it became much worse. They fought until one walked away, the victor."

Last year she decided to go to India. "I'd had a number of students from India, I was doing yoga, and I was interested in their culture and religion," she says. She took the opportunity to get a snapshot of India's famed Bengal tigers along the way.

Her portfolio of nature photos is huge: ducks and dolphins, foxes and flamingos, hummingbirds and hippos, manatees and mountain goats. panthers and pelicans, wolves and woodpeckers are all a part of it. And her photos of Florida's wildlife are both extensive and exquisite. "I've traveled all over the planet," she says, "and

Two great horned owlets hide in their mother's feathers.

The "Lion King" spends an intimate interlude with his pride.

A polar bear in the Norwegian Arctic prepares for a broadjump.

I've never found a place more special than Florida. We live in a paradise, and we have to protect it."

She first came to visit Florida in 2009, when her daughter Betsy was living in Sarasota. "I loved it here. And I found Stump Pass," she says with a smile. Officially it's Stump Pass Beach

State Park, 245 acres at the most southerly point on Manasota Key, and their brochure states that it's "the perfect spot for viewing wildlife, sunbathing, hiking, fishing and boating.' Mary agrees. She has become a volunteer with the Friends of Stump Pass and is their official photographer. She participated in the re-nourishment project this past year that rebuilt some of the Key's eroded beaches, and she helped in the relocation of protected turtle nests affected by that project. She is particularly fond of Florida's shorebirds and has become an advocate for their protection-especially the threatened terns and ploversenough so that she is known to many folks as "The Bird Lady." She cautions that Florida has lost millions of shorebirds in the past few years due to loss of habitat, loss of food sources affected by red tide and disruptive activities of tourists and Florida residents. She gives speeches on these issues and writes a regular column ("Noticing Nature") for the Englewood Sun.

On the side, she's been teaching a class in photography at Ringling College of Art and Design. "I'd never taught photography before, but I was a teacher and I am a photographer, so I thought, why not? I've had my career, I'm retired and now I do the fun stuff." That includes five books of photo studies of nature she's had published since 2014. "I love being out in the morning," she says, "and people can usually find me at Stump Pass beach."

And if she's not there, who knows? She might be off on another jaunt, shooting pictures of lions and tigers and bears. Oh my!

Englewood Animal Rescue Sanctuary (E.A.R.S.) held the official ribbon cutting at their new location, 500 N. Indiana Avenue, on December 11th. It was truly a celebration with E.A.R.S. board members, staff volunteers, friends, supporters, and Englewood Chamber representatives attending. Many fourlegged friends were also present. E.A.R.S. founder Peggy Hauptman and Paula Hines were honored during the event. ### Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 arid. broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
